Brief Description

This project aims to strengthen the National Assembly of Suriname in carrying out its core functions and responsibilities, based upon a comprehensive approach to parliamentary development. The project will focus on 8 areas: legislative function, oversight function, representative function of parliament, Secretariat and staff services, parliamentary strengthening instruments, international relations, gender equality and ICT strengthening of Parliament.

The project will provide policy guidance, initiate capacity building initiatives and facilitate best practices in parliamentary development and good governance. The project is based on four strategy foundations: promoting national ownership in parliamentary development; incorporating of ‘lessons learned’ from other parliamentary development projects; knowledge building and knowledge transfer to enhance sustainability; working cooperatively with other partners. The project aims for a time period of 4 years.

I. SITUATION ANALYSIS AND POLITICAL CONTEXT

1.1 POLITICAL SYSTEM

Suriname's modern political stability is often attributed to several factors unique to its political system and to its national vision. First, Suriname's political roots are in "consociational democracy".¹ "Consociationalism" is a power-sharing system where each of the political groups or parties is too small to hold a majority position. Thus, there is maximum autonomy of groups, political power sharing, and proportional representation.²

The Constitution establishes the system of government as a mixed presidential-parliamentary system. From the presidential model, the Constitution adopts an executive President and Vice-President. From the parliamentary model, the Constitution retains a cabinet (Council of Ministers) and a parliament (the National Assembly).

Governing power is divided between the executive and the legislature. Several articles in the Constitution indicate that the executive is accountable to the National Assembly. Article 90 states that the President is answerable to the National Assembly and, in a similar spirit, Article 116.2 states that "the Government is answerable to the National Assembly". Furthermore, Article 83 gives the National Assembly the power to amend the Constitution and convene a People's Assembly (formed of the National Assembly, district councils, and local councils).

However, the Constitution also denotes the President as the head of state and head of government and gives the President considerable powers in most areas. The President is both the head of government and head of state. The Vice-President acts as the President's deputy and chairs the Council of Ministers (cabinet). Unlike most fully presidential systems, the President and Vice-President are not elected directly. The National Assembly — which is elected by direct ballot nationwide — convenes to elect a President and Vice-President by a two-thirds majority vote.

The President, in consultation with the political parties that win seats in the National Assembly and form a governing coalition, chooses the Council of Ministers. Many members of the Cabinet are chosen from members of the parliament. Within three months a nominated minister must give up his or her seat in the Assembly and is replaced by the elected substitute. The National Assembly does not rule on the President's nominations to the Cabinet as many of the selections are done in consultation and coordination with the coalition parties.

The President, in consultation with the political parties that win seats in the National Assembly and form a governing coalition, chooses the State Council. The Council's members are representatives from trade unions, employer organizations, and political parties from the legislature (which varies according to number of parties represented in the National Assembly). The role of the Council is to advise the President on matters of legislation proposed by the National Assembly and see that the President's decisions on such legislation are executed by the Assembly in an orderly manner.

1.2 ELECTORAL FRAMEWORK AND OUTCOME OF LAST ELECTIONS

Elections in Suriname are organized based upon the Electoral Law of 23 October 1987. Suriname elects its single chamber Parliament of 51 seats for a period of 5 years. The electoral system is a party-list proportional representation system. Candidates are elected by proportional representation on a largest-average formula basis with preferential votes.

Each constituency has a certain number of seats. The first seat is awarded to the political party having obtained the highest number of votes. The remaining seats are awarded to the party with the highest average number of votes. In each party list, the candidate(s) having obtained the most preferential votes are declared elected. There are 10 multi-member constituencies or districts: Paramaribo (17) , Wanica (7), Nickerie (5), Coronie (2), Saramacca (3), Commewijne (4), Marowijne (3), Para (3), Brokopondo (3) and Sipaliwini (4).

Vacancies arising between general elections are filled by substitutes, according to the order of names on each party list. Voting is not compulsory.

The most recent elections were held in Suriname on 25 May 2010, and conducted in a peaceful manner. The Mega Combination (MC) became the largest party and won 23 out of the 51 seats. The results of the elections and the distribution of seats in the newly elected parliament is as follows:

25 May 2010 Surinamese legislative election results
Parties and alliance	Votes	%	Seats
Mega Combinatie (MC)	95,543	40.22	23
New Front for Democracy and Development (NF +)	75,190	31.65	14
People's Alliance (VA)	30,844	12.98	6
Party for Democracy and Development through Unity (DOE)	12,085	5.09	1
BVD/PVF	12,043	5.07	—
A Combinatie (AC)	11,176	4.70	7
Democratic Union Suriname (DUS)	284	0.12	—
Permanent Prosperity Republic of Suriname (PPRS)	261	0.11	—
National Union (NU)	149	0.06	—
Total (turnout 73.21%)	237,575	100.00	51

The 51 Members of Parliament were sworn in on 30 June 2010. The same day, parliamentarians chose Mrs. Jennifer Geerlings – Simons (MC) as the new President of Parliament. For the first time in Parliament the Vice President who is also chosen, is from the opposition, Mrs. Ruth Wijdenbosch.

Following negotiations led by the MC, a coalition agreement with A-Combination and VA was reached. The three parties nominated Desire Bouterse and Robert Ameerali as respectively President and Vice-President of the country. On 19 July the two candidates were chosen in Parliament with more than the necessary 2/3 majority. Desire Bouterse and Robert Ameerali were sworn in as President and Vice President of the Republic of Suriname on 12 August 2010.

1.3 MEMBERS AND COMMITTEES OF THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OF SURINAME

Suriname's parliament — the National Assembly — is a unicameral body with 51 members. The National Assembly is broadly representative, although small districts have a disproportionate weight.

At the most recent elections on 25 May 2010, 30 members were newly elected and 21 members of the previous parliament were re-elected. So, almost 60 % of the members are new to parliament.

Most parliamentarians do not consider the function of parliamentarian a full-time profession: 48 members have a second job. Analysis of the members' profile suggests that 35 MPs are working in official, government-related positions (in various sectors), 6 MPs have a function in the private sector and 5 MPs are active in NGOs. Three MPs have two other professional occupations.

The National Assembly appoints Standing Committees for each ministry (16 ministries as decreed in 1991). Besides these committees, there is a Committee for Business of Parliament and a committee for public finances. If necessary, ad hoc committees may be appointed to look into a particular matter or something that needs an urgent solution. Standing Committees are meant to communicate with their respective ministers as a kind of liaison between the Parliament and the government. Each committee has seven members.³

II. STRATEGY

The current project "Strengthening the National Assembly of Suriname" is based upon a solid strategy assessment and a number of strategic choices.

2.1 IN LINE WITH THE UNDAF AND THE COUNTRY PROGRAM DOCUMENT

Firstly, the project is closely connected to the United Nations Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF) outcome 2 to enhance governance systems through participatory planning and monitoring, public sector reform, legal reform and protection. (UNDAF 2.2.1) Participatory planning and public participation are mentioned as important aspects of governance. The multi-annual development plan identifies effective public sector administration as key to sustainable human development processes.

The Country Program Document mentions that it will focus on enhancing the capacity of government and non-state actors to formulate and implement policies that ensure effective public services. In conjunction with other United Nations organizations, the programme will support national efforts to address human security, legal reform and protection issues. The Country Program Document also mentions that strengthened participatory planning and monitoring are national priorities in the area of good governance. UNDP will thus support efforts to develop effective participatory mechanisms in development policy formulation and monitoring. They will focus on enhancing the capacity of local and traditional authorities and non-state actors to participate in policy-making and monitoring. These are key components of the current parliamentary program as well.

Finally, the Country Program Document recognizes that the governance portfolio is a major component of the programme, incorporating assistance to national priorities and positioning UNDP in support of institutional change. Projects have included parliamentary and political parties development, election processes, and the land rights dialogue. Other initiatives have supported more effective government, including capacity assessment as part of the public sector reform process.

2.2. UNDP SUPPORT TO THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

In 2003, UNDP started a first project of assistance to the National Assembly of Suriname. The project focused on, amongst others, a baseline assessment of the functioning of the National Assembly, a review of the Rules of Procedure, support to the parliament's role to substantial development topics including international trade agreements, strengthening the information service of parliament and the parliament's interaction with the public, and support for the publication of the parliament's transcripts.

In 2010, the UNDP and the Speaker of the newly-elected Parliament engaged in discussions on the framework for a full, multi-year project for strengthening the capacity of Parliament. In light of the fruitful past collaboration such a project, aiming to strengthen one of the critical governance institutions in Suriname, will be fully in line with the Government's Multi-Annual Plan and is critical for achieving the Millennium Development Goals in Suriname.

While such a multi-year project is being developed, UNDP and the parliament agreed on the immediate start of an "Initiation Plan", in line with the current United Nations Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF 2008 - 2011) signed between the Government of Suriname and the United Nations. The "initiation plan" includes a series of briefing/learning sessions on a wide range of topics which are critical in the development of Suriname; policy briefs on topical issues for use by Parliamentarians on external missions; Training of Officers and the Staff of Parliament and the finalization and signature of the full Project Document.

In addition, the United Nations Country Team in Suriname – UNICEF, UNDP, UNFPA and the Pan American Health Organization – offered support to the parliament on a wide range of technical issues, including ratification of international treaties and UN conventions, finalization and implementation of key national legislation, programs for improved knowledge of English of children towards promoting greater integration and learning within the CARICOM region, support to a Suriname Green Development Strategy and Eco-Tourism, support to the Millennium Development Goals (MDG), inter alia, in the areas of poverty reduction, environmental conservation and protection, health promotion, decent work, occupational safety and health, HIV AIDS in the workplace, human rights promotion and protection. In this way, the United Nations Country Team in Suriname made a commitment to assist in the development of a UN program for strengthening the substantive capacity of parliamentarians on the mentioned areas.⁴

2.3. ASSESSMENT MISSION & QUESTIONNAIRE TO MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT

In this framework, UNDP Suriname asked the assistance of the Democratic Governance Group of UNDP New York for an assessment mission at the end of 2010. The mission was conducted by Franklin De Vrieze, Programme Manager of UNDP's Global Programme for Parliamentary Strengthening (GPPS).

As the mission took place at short notice and over a short period, from 1 to 4 December 2010, only a limited number of interviews could be conducted. The sources of information for the mission were broadened with a series of in-person and phone consultations, literature review and a questionnaire for members of parliament.

The questionnaire was developed based upon IPU's Self-Assessment Toolkit for Parliaments (2008), UNDP's Strategy Note on Parliamentary Development (2009) and the European Commission's Reference Document on Strategies & Methodologies for working with Parliaments (2010), while taking into account the specifics of the Suriname political and parliamentary context and the author's own experience working in other countries.

Out of 51 members of the National Assembly, 33 persons responded to the Questionnaire. This constitutes a response rate of 65 %. The full questionnaire and the consolidated responses of the members of parliament are attached to the "Functional Review and Institutional Capacities Assessment" report.

One of the main meetings took place with the "Commission for Institutional Strengthening" of the National Assembly of Suriname. The Commission was created on 18 November 2010. Members are the President and vice-President of Parliament, heads of parliamentary groups, two new MPs from the ruling coalition, 1 new MP from opposition parties, 3 persons from the Secretariat specialized in ICT issues, the Secretary General and her deputy and the head of the financial department.

2.4. RELEVANT POLICY FRAMEWORKS

In designing the current project document, the following policy framework documents have been taken into account:

- Millennium Development Goals: the MDG aspiration to seek inclusive political processes in which there would be full citizen participation.
- The United Nations Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF) 2008–2011 for Suriname.
- UNDP's Strategy Note on Parliamentary Development (2009).
- Constitution of the Republic of Suriname.
- Rules of Procedure of the National Assembly of Suriname

2.5. STRATEGY FOUNDATIONS

While the overall objective of the project is to strengthen the functioning of the parliament of Suriname, the design of the present project is organized on the following four strategy foundations: A. promoting national ownership in parliamentary development; B. incorporating of 'lessons learned' from other parliamentary development projects; C. knowledge building and knowledge transfer in order to enhance sustainability of the project outcomes; D. working cooperatively with other partners.

A. Promoting national ownership in parliamentary development

National ownership of parliamentary development is an absolute prerequisite. A number of mechanisms have been foreseen to ensure that. Firstly, the draft Project Document will be discussed and reviewed by the Commission for Institutional Strengthening of Parliament. This will ensure that the parliament is fully in the driving seat for the design and planning of the project. Once the project becomes operational, a project Board will be established, under the leadership of a designated representative of the National Assembly. Regular consultations with the President, vice-president and heads of parliamentary groups and Committee chairpersons will be envisaged by the project team.

B. Lessons learned

A second strategy foundation of the current project relates to making use of lessons learned in parliamentary development. The issues on which the parliament of Suriname seeks advice and expertise have been discussed and explored in other parliaments as well. The current project will bring on board a number of 'lessons learned', through expertise of consultants, knowledge materials, manuals and handbooks as well as the guidance of staff or former staff of the UNDP Democratic Governance Group.

The project design is also built upon 'lessons learned' from other programs implemented under the umbrella of the UNDP "Global Programme for Parliamentary Strengthening"; and will seek to receive further best practices guidance through AGORA, the new portal on parliamentary development.⁵

C. Knowledge building and knowledge transfer

The project is based upon the input of a (limited) number of international advisors on parliamentary or legal issues, in addition to national staff. The international advisors will give guidance to project implementation; provide expertise in specific areas to parliamentarians and staff, draft knowledge products, concept notes, evaluation reports and recommendations. Highly prioritized capacity development through interactions between international advisors and Suriname parliamentarians and senior staff should therefore be central to the operation of the project. The selection and the role of the staff and consultants require careful and precise preparation and follow-up.

However, international support is unlikely, by itself, to provide the range of interventions required to build the capacity required without a strong management which is constantly directing and monitoring capacity transfer on a number of fronts. The project manager will need to be in constant contact with the advisors/ consultants, whether in-country or abroad, to be able to provide them with up-to-date assessments and requests in order to match the capacity gaps and the interventions as delivered by the project. The utilization of international and national democratic parliamentary or governance institutions can also substantially enhance the opportunities for knowledge building and knowledge transfer.

In order to ensure sustainability of capacity building efforts and knowledge transfer, a project timeline of 4 years is envisaged.

D. Working with other partners – creation of the "Assembly Support Initiative" (ASI).

It will be vital that multiplier effects are maximized through clear understanding of how the Parliament project relates to other donor and UN programme work, particularly in the Democratic Governance area in which the UN is already engaged, and to relevant projects in other agencies. The UN Country Team in Suriname is committed to work together in bringing technical expertise on a wide range of policy areas to the service of the National Assembly.

The project also envisages partnerships with a number of Suriname partners, such as the Democracy Unit, Projekta, VrouwenForum and others. In order to maximize this cooperation, it is suggested to create a forum where all partners working in support of parliament can exchange information, the "Assembly Support Initiative" (ASI). The ASI-platform can be chaired by the Project Manager, unless decided otherwise by the Project

Board. Meetings should be held once a month, at least. Coordination between donors and implementing partners is vital for a successful implementation strategy of the project.

2.6. STRATEGIC AREAS FOR INTERVENTION

The project has been developed based upon consultations between October 2010 and February 2011, taking on board the guidance of the President and vice-president of the National Assembly, and a series of additional contacts and phone consultations with stakeholders. As a result, the following 7 areas for intervention have been identified:

- Legislative function of parliament
- Oversight function of parliament
- Representative function of parliament
- Secretariat and staff services of parliament
- Parliament's Institutional Strengthening framework
- International and inter-parliamentary relations
- Gender policy of parliament
- Integrated ICT support of each function through an E parliament strategy

Each of these areas of intervention constitute one project component, which are closely related in implementation methodology and sequencing. The ability of the project to achieve its full potential will depend on utilizing the network of interdependencies between the components in terms of expertise brought to the project and communication of the results of the project. The effectiveness and success of the project will also depend on the continued commitment and time investment of the parliament leadership, ongoing support of the senior staff of parliament and regular interaction with UNDP leadership.

Gender issues cut across all aspects of parliamentary business activity, in particular legislation and oversight.⁶ The gender mainstreaming approach will be taken into account when implementing and evaluating the outputs and activities of the project. A gender marker will be used when evaluating the profile of participants and overall beneficiaries of the project activities.

2.7. RATIONALE FOR THE PROJECT COMPONENTS AND NEEDS ASSESSMENT OF PARLIAMENT PER COMPONENT

Each of the 7 areas of intervention have been assessed in-depth prior to drafting this project document. The assessment covered the legal framework (Constitution and Rules of Procedure), international best practices, current practices in Suriname parliament and recommendations for the way ahead.

The assessment and the rationale for the 7 project components can be found in the "Functional Review and Institutional Capacities Assessment Report", pg. 15 – 49.
