2. Background

This project, coping with drought and climate change, is implemented as a pilot in Kalu Woreda of the South Wollo Zone.

Increasing long run temperature and declining rainfall scenarios for the northern half of Ethiopia including the project pilot sites will negatively affect agricultural production, deteriorate infrastructure and worsen livelihoods of rural poor. Predicted climate change including variability will exert additional pressures on the already weakened subsistence economy of the pilot areas.

Thus, the project will build adaptive/coping capacity of rural poor in the selected pilot sites to cope with drought and climate change and in doing so, contributes towards the reduction of the threat of climate change on livelihood opportunities. The project will also build capacities of key stakeholders at different levels to disseminate and utilize effective climate and early warning information in agricultural planning process.

3. Goal of the project

The goal of the project is to enhance the capacity of agricultural systems in Ethiopia to adapt to climate variability and change. The project contributes to this goal through developing and piloting a range of coping mechanisms for reducing the vulnerability of farmers and pastoralists to future climate shocks.

4. Coverage of the project

The project is implemented in Kalu woreda of South Wollo Zone in six kebeles (Kebele 04,016,017,018,031 and 032). The direct beneficiaries of the project are 21,991 male and 19,430 female a total of 41,421. The beneficiaries by household are 8,011 male and 1,278 female a total of 9,289.
